the Court may, if satisfied that the other party has caused actual bodily harm to the applicant or, as the case may be, to the child concerned and if of the opinion that the other party is likely to do so again, attach a power of arrest to the injunction.

(2) If, by virtue of subsection (1), a power of arrest is attached to an injunction a police officer may arrest without warrant a person whom he has reasonable cause for suspecting of being in breach of such a provision of that injunction as falls within paragraphs (a) to (c) of subsection (1) by reason of the use of violence by that person or, as the case may be, of the entry of that person into any premises or area.

(3) Where a power of arrest is attached to an injunction and a person to whom the injunction is addressed is arrested under subsection (2) —

- (a) he shall be brought before the Supreme Court within a period of twenty-four hours beginning at the time of his arrest; and
- (b) upon proof of the breach of any such provision of the injunction as falls within paragraphs (a) to (c) of subsection (1), he may be ordered by the Supreme Court to pay a sum not exceeding two thousand dollars or to serve a term of imprisonment not exceeding fourteen days and, in the case of a continuing breach, he may be ordered by the Court to pay a further sum not exceeding one hundred dollars for each day that such breach continues after the date of its proof, and in reckoning for the purposes of this subsection any period of twenty-four hours, no account shall be taken of any Saturday, Sunday or public holiday.

(4) Where by virtue of a power of arrest attached to an injunction, a police officer arrests any person under subsection (2), the police officer shall forthwith seek the directions of the Registrar of the Supreme Court as to the time and place at which that person is to be brought before the Supreme Court.

33. (1) Where one party to a marriage is entitled to occupy the matrimonial home by virtue of a beneficial estate or interest or contract or by virtue of any written law giving that party the right to remain in occupation, and the other party to the marriage is not so entitled, then, subject to the provisions of this Part, the party not so entitled shall have the following rights (in this Part referred to as “rights of occupation”) —

Rights concerning matrimonial home where one spouse has no estate.

- (b) if not in occupation, a right with the leave of the court so given to enter into and occupy the matrimonial home.

(2) So long as one party to a marriage has rights of occupation, either party to the marriage may apply to the Supreme Court for an order —

- (a) may except part of the matrimonial home from a party’s rights of occupation (and, in particular, a part used wholly or mainly for or in connection with the trade, business or profession of the other party),
- (b) may order a party occupying the matrimonial home or any part thereof by virtue of this section to make periodical payments to the other in respect of the occupation; or

(c) may impose on either party obligations as to the repair and maintenance of the matrimonial home or the discharge of any liabilities in respect of the matrimonial home.

(4) Orders under this section may, in so far as they have a continuing effect, be limited so as to have effect for a period specified in the order or until further order.

(5) Where a party is entitled under this section to occupy a matrimonial home or any part thereof and makes any payment in or towards satisfaction of any liability of the other party in respect of mortgage payments affecting the matrimonial home, the person to whom the payment is made may treat it as having been made by that other party, but the fact that that person has treated any such payment as having been so made shall not affect any claim of the first-mentioned party against the other to an interest in the matrimonial home by virtue of the payment.

(6) The rights of occupation of a party to a marriage shall continue only so long as the marriage subsists and the other party is entitled as mentioned in subsection (1) to occupy the dwelling house.
